

FOREVER

A collection of wedding bands

Press presentation Thursday 24th March 2016 from 3 pm

Getting married, or married again, or moving in together... a wedding band still remains the all-time, universal token of love, offering a ring is the gesture that has weathered all the changes in the way couples meet and live.

Some jewelry designers choose to channel their creativity in a symbolic, tiny object which becomes their signature.

So why is one band so different from another?

Well, everything from material to shape, surface and colour, with or without gemstones, from 170€ to over 4,000€...

Traditional metals – 18 ct gold, platinum or solid silver – rub shoulders with the more avant-garde titanium and palladium.

To celebrate the love of a summer or of a lifetime, bands by:

Esther Assouline, Florence Croisier, Ambroise Degenève, Nathalie Dmitrovic, Karen Gay, Jean Grisoni, Jo Hayes-Ward, Niessing, Laurence Oppermann, Laurence et Philippe Ratinaud, Agathe Saint Girons, Martin Spreng, Philippe Tournaire and Claire Wolfstirn.

The Elsa Vanier Gallery sets out to promote the profoundly cultural dimension of the jewelry designed by artists, who have chosen rare, precious or fascinating materials to express their art.
